Being able to stay out here in the country and not be bothered by a lot of people. It's a nice place to live. We live in the country so there's not a lot of people around. No.

There are no African Americans up here. Besides no African Americans, there's a lot of cattle, I like that too. There's lot of cattle so there aren't many people. I like the forty below zero weather, it keeps people out. I like the mosquitoes in the summer time that eat everybody up. It's perfect for someone that's hardy. I like to go out and shoot elk, deer, and antelope. I enjoy hunting and fishing. That's about all.

I don't know, that's a good question. I like that it isn't overpopulated. The traffic is bad enough, but there's other places where it's a lot worse. The people are so nice here. My granddaughter was going to move here and everyone was so nice. She lives in Idaho and I think they're nice there too. My kids always like it when they come to visit too. I'm not a big fisherman, hunter or anything, but I was married to someone that was. He's gone now but men really love Montana because of the good area for hunting and fishing and stuff. I was born in Montana so it's kind of like coming home again. I've lived in about five different states. I can't even think right now but I do like it here. My brain just went South.

I still think we have freedoms here in Montana that they don't have in the rest of the country. We have natural shrubs and natural forests. We're able to go out and enjoy and not worry about no trespassing. It was a thing I enjoyed when I was a kid. We road our motorcycles through the woods of northeast New Jersey and I wasn't able to do that anywhere else except here.

Skiing and the river. I'm a ski patroller, so are my husband and my daughters. We ski every weekend if not more. We're avid river rats. We dig the outdoors. Montana has some of the most pristine waterways that the lower forty-eight has. My husband and I both sit on environmental boards. He's on Trout Unlimited and I'm on the Bitter Root Water Forum. It is not only a passion, but it is also a value that we instill in our daily lives and try to show to our community. That would be water in all of it's facets. Montana rocks.

It has quite a good climate. It isn't a climate that's cold a long time in the winter. We live in the belt and it warms up rather quickly if we have really cold weather. We have fairly long summers, as long as you can have in a northern state. I live on a ten thousand acre ranch that's been in my family for a long time. It's just very laid back and quiet. I like that we live in a small town because one of the things people hate is that you know everything about everyone. At the same time, that's one of the things that's really nice about living in a small town. You become connected with people who aren't even necessarily in your own group per say. I like that because it gives you a sense of caring for the people in the community in a way you don't get in a bigger city. I love the drive to Manzullo, because even though it's a long drive, it's a beautiful drive. We do a lot of hiking as a family, all of our kids hunt. It's beautiful. It's got great hunting and fishing resources, and it's a small town. It looks beautiful, the views are beautiful, and there's hiking in the wilderness. Most importantly, we can harvest our own game and feed ourselves. I think that the best part about living here is being able to go out and go hunting. Not that I can think of. I grow my own garden and can contribute to our income level by hunting and growing our own food. We live close to where we work, we don't have to drive a long way.
